LAST WEEKS MEETING:

Guest speaker was Ross White, a Psychologist based in Canberra who also rents a bit of office space off Clarkey. Ross completed his uni courses in the 60's, graduated in Science thence pursued psychology and gained a Master of Arts in 1971. A further diploma in 1991 and last year gained a Master of Science, Honours, and Social Ecology. He has previously worked for government, uses the teaching of Jung and Sigmund Freud. When working with clients he focuses on helping them become more self motivated and confident. He said a lot of people don't follow the rational of a dream, but dreams help people learn about themselves. Phobias repressed during the day, may come out as dreams at night. The structure of dreams may tell a lot about a person. Shadows, on the dark side express things they repress. With patients approval, he used some examples of dreams they had had, and their meaning. Recommended everyone to keep a diary beside the bed to record dreams while fresh, review and catch snippets. Lie back, relax and the dreams may come back. There are reasons for dreams, and exercises available to assist you to remember them. Apparently Les S dreams of himself.
