Pride of Work Awards - Geoff Bowland

Issue: 19 May

This week's meeting was the annual presentation of the Pride of Work Awards. Geoff Bowland gave a short address on the aims of this award before the presentation of the awards. The annual Cooma Rotary Pride of Work Awards were made as Certificates of Excellence given to five Cooma people who were considered by Rotary and their employers to be outstanding in their respective vocations. The Pride of Work Awards are a feature of Rotary in general, not only to give recognition to specific people in the community who are identified each time but to use the opportunity to make public acknowledgement of all, both discovered and undiscovered people, who treat their allotted tasks as being important, and warranting their best efforts. Rotary believes that its program gives an opportunity to thank specific people for their contribution for making Australia better by their example. The people who were selected for awards this year each received citations from their employers which left no doubt that they are outstanding people who have consistently encouraged those around them as they have gone about their jobs in such an impressive way over the years. The awards this year were made to:- Liz McMahon - Snowy BEC; Des Marshall - Monbeef; Jenni Venables - Country Energy; Susan Pimm - Country Energy Violet Wheeler - Cooma Health Service

Des Liz Jenni Violet

Community Service News - David Holgate

Your tree project at Rotary Oval was inspected recently. All 45 trees are healthy, the irrigation system is serviceable, there are no signs of vandalism. The weed poisoning program carried out by Ken Dane has been very effective and made weeding around trees a breeze. I noticed late in the growing season that the prunus leaves were heavily infested with a pest. This will need to be treated next season, suggestions on method would be appreciated. Several rugby players arriving for a game showed pleasure at the tree project and thanked us for our contribution to their new bus.
